AHMED PATEL: 1949-2020

Cong left poorer after its trusted lieutenant departs

ADITI PHADNIS

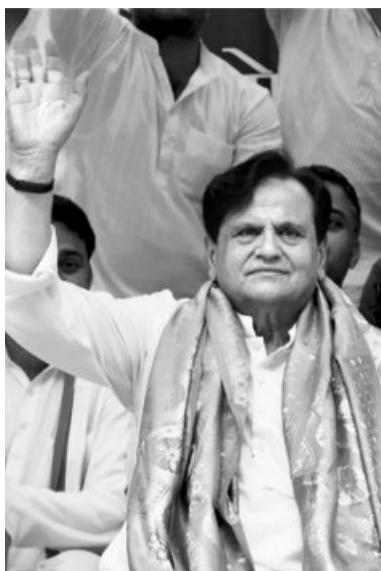

Ahmed Patel, treasurer of the Indian National Congress, Member of Parliament (MP), a close aide to former prime minister (PM) Rajiv Gandhi and Congress President Sonia Gandhi, died on Wednesday at 71. He leaves behind a void that no one can fill. This may sound like a cliché. But there are few in the party today who are capable of being a bridge over troubled waters that Patel proved to be, time and again.

Patel was just 28 when he became an MP in 1977. The Congress had been wiped out in many states, but Gujarat had saved the day, sending a handful of MPs to the Lok Sabha (LS). He was elected from his native Bharuch (formerly known as Broach) district — a region that still swears by him though it may not elect him anymore (the Bharatiya Janata Party, or BJP, has retained four out of five Assembly seats in the parliamentary constituency for the past two decades).

When Indira Gandhi was assassinated and Rajiv came to power in 1984 with a 400-plus majority in the LS, Patel, who had built a connect with Rajiv when the former PM was nothing more than a party general secretary, was promoted rapidly as party apparatchik. By 1986, Rajiv had formalised his plan to replace older Congress leaders with his boys. Patel was sent back to Gujarat as the president of the party unit in the state. Then Rajiv was assassinated and most of his supporters switched allegiance to PV Narasimha Rao.

Patel, however, had lost the LS election as well as the party position in Gujarat. He had no house in Delhi, no patron, nothing. His friend Najma Heptulla had arranged guest accommodation for him in Meena Bagh. But he was served a notice to vacate in three days time, at a time when his son and daughter both were taking board exams. And this by a government that was headed by a Congress PM! From then on, Patel resolved he would neither seek nor accept anything from the Rao government.

What he did accept, however, was the secretaryship of the Jawahar Bhawan Trust — a project begun by Rajiv, visualised as a think tank for the Congress, but pushed in real earnest by Sonia in the years after his assassination. The Rajiv Gandhi Foundation, housed in the Jawahar Bhawan premises, was offered — in the first Budget presented by then finance minister Manmohan Singh — an outlay of ₹20 crore, which Sonia turned down. It was Patel who worked tirelessly to raise money and drove contractors and others to finish the project. The appointment, as can be imagined, gave him a unique opportunity denied to other Congressmen — access to Sonia.

Despite this position, Patel was lonely in the years that followed — mitigated only by the vast network he had created as a result of holding so many party posts, his personal popularity, and his understanding of the Congress structure. This was demonstrated most clearly during the party conference in Tirupati in 1993 where after years, elections were held to the Congress Working Committee. He got the third-highest number of votes, presumably a result of past favours.

The period from 1996 to 2000 was a period of great instability in the Congress. In 1999, Jitendra Prasada, for a while political advisor to Rao, decided to take on Sonia for the party presidency. The outcome was a no-brainer. Once she became president of the party, Sonia appointed Patel her political advisor.

Patel's closeness to the Gandhi family was undeniable. But unlike others, he resisted the temptation to use it to leverage personal business. Those who have seen him in action say he could raise ₹30 crore in Gujarat in 30 minutes by making a few phone calls. Reporters have been witness to sacks full of currency notes going through his office to 'facilitate' this or that election. He turned down all offers of ministerships, opting to stay an organisation man.

There are only two occasions when corruption charges were voiced against him and he announced that if they were proved he would quit politics. One was by former Mizoram governor Swaraj Kaushal some decades ago; and the other, more recently, was his role in funding an operation to secure the support of some BJP MPs to get them to quit their party and vote in favour of the United Progressive Alliance after the Left parties pulled out support (2009). Patel was exonerated by a parliamentary committee that went into the incident. The Narendra Modi government in its second phase tried to embroil Patel's family in money laundering and Enforcement Directorate enquiries. Till he fell ill, Patel was confident that nothing would come out of it all. No other member of his family is in politics.

He was personally a man of austere habits, not one to wine and dine or have kebab and biryani parties to win friends and influence people. Patel was not a particularly prosperous man. His money belonged to his wife whose family were local zamindars in Bharuch. It was he who encouraged the chemical industry development at Ankleswar and especially the Jamnagar refinery, something that brought him extremely close to the Ambani family — both father Dhirubhai, and son Mukesh.

When Rahul Gandhi took over, it was generally assumed that the organisation would be overhauled. But while seniors like Janardan Dwivedi were edged out, Patel was retained. He was the organic link between the Sonia Congress and the Rahul Congress. With his death, the Congress is poorer — in more ways than one.

LVB to operate...

Before the RBI's move, LVB was in talks for months with Clix Capital, a non-banking financial company, for a possible merger. However, the discussions did not lead to any effective outcome, leading to further uncertainty about the fate of the bank. The speedy amalgamation (of LVB with DBIL, subsidiary of Singapore based DBS Bank) and resolution of the stress in LVB was in line with the government's commitment to a clean banking system, the government said in a statement.

The combined balance-sheet of DBIL would remain healthy even after amalgamation and its branches would increase to 600.

LVB has 563 branches and five extension counters with a pan-Indian presence. It has 974 ATMs and has deployed PoS machines at various merchant establishments. DBIL has the advantage of a strong parentage of DBS, a leading financial services group in Asia, with a presence in 18 markets and headquartered and listed in Singapore.

As of June 30, DBIL's total regulatory capital was ₹7,109 crore. Its capital adequacy ratio (CAR) was comfortable at 15.99 per cent (against the requirement of 9 per cent) — of which common equity tier-1 (CET-1) capital was at 12.84 per cent, well above the requirement of 5.5 per cent. Its gross non-performing assets (NPAs) and net NPAs were low at 2.7 per cent and 0.5 per cent, respectively.

Although the DBIL is well capitalised, it will bring in additional capital of ₹2,500 crore upfront to support credit growth of the merged entity.

Owing to a comfortable level of capital, the combined balance sheet of DBIL would remain healthy after the amalgamation. The CAR will be at 12.51 per cent and CET-1 capital at 9.61 per cent, without taking into account the infusion of additional capital.

BPLC...

BPLC has a share of 26 per cent of total 285 million liquefied petroleum gas consumers in India.

The price of petroleum products in the country are linked to the price of the respective products in the international market.

The government, however, continues to modulate the effective price to consumers for subsidised domestic LPG and the consumers get the product at a subsidised rate. The subsidy increases or decreases depending on the movement of the product price in the international market. During 2019-20, total subsidy on LPG was around ₹22,635 crore, while that on kerosene was ₹1,833 crore.

The government's plan is to sell its entire shareholding in BPCL comprising 1.15 billion equity shares, with the transfer of management control to a strategic buyer, excluding the company's 61.65 per cent in the Numaligarh Refinery in Assam. BPCL operates four refineries in India — Mumbai Refinery, Kochi Refinery, BORL-Bina Refinery (Bharat Oman Refineries), and Numaligarh Refinery (1999) — with a combined crude oil refining capacity of 38.3 MMTPA (million tonne per annum). The company runs 24 per cent or 17,138 of total 71,843 retail outlets in India.

NRI investment...

"We are assessing various nuances and repercussions associated with it," said a source in the finance ministry. According to him, a group of FPIs approached the finance ministry and the markets regulator, seeking removal of the cap amid the Covid-19 pandemic as there has been an exponential rise in the NRI money in many India-dedicated funds.

The sources said that looking at the foreign money inflows, Sebi recently sought details of NRIs from custodians to gauge the quantum of NRI investment and the number of funds dominated by NRIs. Many industry experts feel scrapping the restrictions will bring more capital and also help domestic fund houses to grow and establish their brand globally.

Markets tumble...

Positive news on the Covid-19 vaccine front, the formal start of US President-elect Joe Biden's transition to power, and news reports about Janet Yellen's possible elevation to US Treasury secretary had helped the markets scale fresh highs this week.

However, on Wednesday, concerns about a challenging economic outlook amid the pandemic and restrictions to curb surging coronavirus infections led to profit-booking across the counters.

"We can expect profit-booking to continue in our domestic market in the short term, as the liquidity-driven rally can take a pause, having reached an all-time high on a monthly basis. This money was triggered by the results of the US elections that unleashed high amounts of funds, which were put on hold. FIIs may take a breather and check for the next phase of policies in the US and Europe for 2021," Vinod Nair, head of research at Geojit Financial Services.

Analysts said investors will keenly watch the bunch of economic indicators set to be released later by central banks and governments. Investors will also look for more clarity on further fiscal or monetary stimulus to support the economic recovery.

The market breadth was negative with total advancing stocks at 1,126 and those declining at 1,662 on the BSE. All the Sensex components, barring three, ended the session with losses.
